There is so much good in the worst of us;
And so much bad in the best of us;
That it little behooves the rest of us
To talk about the best of us.
Mark Twain. (?)

Class organization will be the latter part of the week. Class officers and faculty counselors will be chosen. We advise all students to make careful observation of each member of the faculty so that their decision will be ready. If the teachers' ears burn they'll know why.

Mr. Buehler reports that High school physical training classes are in full swing now. The classes are especially large. This gives a faint streak of light in the dawn of future B. B. seasons.

The High school students have nearly worn old Webster to shatters trying to find a definition of "media" which refers to P. T. wearing apparel.

Finley Klingsmith went to the State fair as the result of receiving the second highest mark on the State examination. Nylon Houghton received the highest percent but was too young to go. Finley gave a very interesting report which made us all wish we had been there.

A Free-Hand drawing class has been organized by Miss H. Parr. There are seventeen enrolled.

We nominate to the Hall of Vamps Louise Salling for her coiffure. Ruby Olson for her spit-curl. Jennie Karpus for the roses in her cheeks.

Lempi Kahonen for vamping Caesar. Florence Stephan for those eyes of hers.
Helen Brown for vamping Francois. Margaret Gendron for her many suitors.

Spike McNeven and R. Hanson are about to re-enter school. We wonder why?

Ferne Armstrong is again a familiar figure in the Assembly room, after having been absent since her graduation a couple of years ago. She is taking Shorthand.

Physical Training, it bores us so. First it's bend high, then it's bend low.
Glide along gayly, but don't stub your toe.
We're starting folk dancing. Those steps so entrancing. Will soon have us prancing. We know.

Our beloved readers will probably be interested in knowing who our dignified seniors are this year.

ROBBED STORE IN LEWISTON

NOW IN JAIL AT BAY CITY.
LOOKS LIKE GANG OF THIEVES.

Walter Alford, age 24, claiming Detroit as his home, was captured Tuesday afternoon in Bay City and placed under arrest for robbing the store of M. Beckman of Lewiston. Mr. Beckman discovered the man and pointed him out to the police and after a lively skirmish, the fugitive running thru alleys, stores and finally into an opening into a basement of one of the large buildings, was captured.

Mr. Beckman told the story of the case, as follows:
"One week ago Sunday morning one of the stores in Lewiston was broken into and goods taken. An investigation failed to reveal the perpetrators of the deed. On Thursday of the same week, the Beckman store was broken into and goods valued at about $500 taken. At this time, the whole town was frightened. I finally got suspicious of this man Alford, who was visiting relatives in our town and procured a search warrant and went with officers to the place where he was staying and searched the house. Mrs. Alford, the wife of the man under arrest in Bay City, attempted to throw stuff out the window and also attempted to hide stuff by sitting on it but she was defeated in both of these attempts and much of the stolen goods was recovered and a lot more stuff which I know nothing about was also found in the home, all of the things being of the most expensive kind."

Alford Escapes During Search.
"While the search of the home was in progress, Alford made his escape from the home and could not be found."

Steals Truck at Lovells.
"The next heard of Alford was on Saturday morning at the village of Lovells, where he was seen and where he also took a truck to make better time on his escape. The truck was found badly damaged about five miles from the village, by people who were trailing Alford. Officers at Grayling were notified and furnished a description of Alford and warned that the man was heading in that direction. The next heard of Alford was at Kneeland, about five miles from Grayling, but he again gave the officers the slip and was not heard of since."

THE BUBBLE AND THE BLOWER.

"We are such stuff as dreams are made of." Read on now and get the dream. Fall in and make it true. A man dreamed the other day and it was a wonder. He saw his community changed from what is to what ought to be. It seemed as though a silent cyclone had hit the town over night. Almost in a twinkling neglected things were become the most important things. Everything seemed to be toned up and smiling.

The town library had changed from a farce to a friend. The room was so crowded with people that a passer-by thought there must be some accident and he too crowded in. Books were not to be had and the people went away muttering. A meeting was hurriedly called and many new books ordered. The boys and girls were off the streets at night and the fathers and mothers were reading to them for the first time to the children's great delight. A strange new light was in the face of

STATE TO OPEN 9,000 ACRES
THERE, AFTER ONE IN EM-MET COUNTY.

Michigan's ninth forest preserve—the Lake Michigan State Forest, located in Emmet County—will be formally opened before October 1, according to Marcus Schaaf, state forester of this city. This tract is located on Cecil Bay, seven miles from Carp Lake and comprises 3,000 acres. Forester Schaaf, whose headquarters are at Grayling, is now searching for a practical woodsman to take charge of this new preserve and the forest will be opened under state management as soon as the custodian can be secured.

The state is to resume its pre-war policy this year of opening two new preserves annually. The other preserve to be established this year is a 9,000 acre tract in Montmorency county, south of Atlanta and east of Lewiston.

Much land in the state is adaptable for forests and several sites are being considered by the forestry department. Some of the tracts already considered and which will be taken over as rapidly as the work can be handled, are as follows:

Five thousand acres in Grand Traverse and Kalkaska; 25,000 acres east of Grayling in Crawford county; 5,000 acres east of the town of Waters in Otsego county; a tract north of Black Lake in Cheboygan county and another tract south of the lake; north of Milsburg in Presque Isle County; west of Hillman in Montmorency county; north of the Au Sable river in Iosco county; in Alcona county near McKinley; in Ogemaw county near St. Helen.

The state department now has 600,000 acres in its preserves under its management.

many a child. The old library was abandoned soon and a fine new building was given to that great use on the main street.

A still greater change seemed to have come over the people regarding the school. The annual meeting was so crowded that it was hard to get into the business. A whole series of changes was begun. The parents invited the teachers to come to their homes for better acquaintance. It seemed that the community could not do enough for these who taught their children. All over the country teachers were trying to get into the school that seemed so progressive and thoughtful. Public play grounds, community programs, sings, all showed that the community knew the value of child life.

It was Sunday morning. A traveling man came out of the hotel and saw a crowd of people hurrying up the street. Stopping one man he said, "What's going on, a fire?" The passerby took the man by the arm and said, "Why, we are going to church, don't you know it's Sunday." The two went together and as they drew near they found people standing way out into the street waiting to get in. After the service the traveling man went away thoughtful and determined. He became with the others an advertiser of the community. Soon the Board of Trade began to get letters from all parts of the country asking about work, housing, investments, etc.

The dreamer awoke with his face wet with the bursted bubble. Then he roused himself to the fact that the dream was not impossible.
Go to church next Sunday. Fill them all. Sing as never before. Lift up heads and thank God for another chance. Come to the Michelson Memorial church if you have no other church home. Service at ten-thirty a. m. and seven-thirty p. m. Sunday School all at eleven forty-five. Pastor's last service before conference. Alfred Sorenson preaches in the evening. Hear him. Forward march!

NO SIREE—DOESN'T PAY.
A store at Big Rapids handling nothing but dry goods is spending $1,000 this year on advertising. A general store at Evart spends nearly that amount each year. A Cadillac furniture store exceeds the $1,000 mark annually. The moving picture theatre at Big Rapids spends from $125 to $200 a month for newspaper advertising. What about these firms? They are the leaders in this section of the state. They have big business and by such great volume reduce the average expense to a minimum. Their advertising appropriations are assets and not an expense. And yet there are some men running stores who say "No siree, advertising doesn't pay."—Reed City Herald.

THE GAME LAWS FOR THE SEASON

DEER AND PARTRIDGE PLACED ON OPEN SEASON.

The deer hunting season limits for the coming hunting period were fixed September 3rd, by the state police domain commission to run from Nov. 13 to Nov. 22. The open season this year covers both the upper and lower peninsula. There was some difference of opinion among sportsmen as to the dates which should be adopted, but it was finally agreed that these dates give as late a season as possible and still get the hunters home in time for Thanksgiving. Following are the outlines of the various laws protecting game animals and birds this year.

It is unlawful for a hunter to have partridge, ducks, coots, geese, brant, woodcock, rails, plover or yellowlegs in his possession 30 days after the close of the open season.

There is no open season this year on the following game animals and birds: Moose, elk and caribou, Mongolian, English or any other pheasant, quail, black fowl, capercaillie, hazel grouse, spruce hens or Canadian grouse, prairie chickens, wild turkey, killdeer; wading, shore and meadow birds homing pigeons, mourning doves and woodcock.

NEW NASH FOUR

Makes Particular Appeal to Women Who Drive.

Women who drive their car will find an unusual appeal in the new Nash Four which, it is expected, will be in production some time in September. This appeal lies in ease of handling, an outstanding feature of this new product of The Nash Motor Company and is due to a number of elements that enter into its scientific design and careful construction.

The Nash Four is an unusually well-balanced car; this not only enhances its riding qualities and makes for tire and gasoline economy but it is responsible in large measure for ease of handling. The short turning radius, a feature that appeals particularly to the women driver, is supplemented in the Nash Four by the general ease with which the car steers under all conditions and by its comfortable riding qualities, due to its unusually long flat springs, its wide restful seats and its unusual room for freedom of movement in the tonneau and front compartment.

Responsiveness of the motor, its quick pick-up and its flexibility make for confidence of the driver and are features that are appreciated particularly in heavy traffic. The Motor is a four-cylinder power plant of the perfected valve-in-head type and the smoothness of its performance, according to Nash engineers, is due to its exceptionally well-balanced construction and to the light weight of its pistons which are balanced to a hair.

The motor is equipped with a counterbalanced crankshaft of unusual size, which is a large contributing factor to the noticeable absence of vibration. The rocker arms being hardened all over do not wear and develop rattle in the life of the motor. The body design of the Nash Four is of streamline type and its proportions are in conformity with that good taste which marks a high degree in the coach-builder's art.

Frocks Express Personality

WOMEN are sure to approve of the new tailored dresses for fall, because there is no chance to grow tired of any one style in them. There is no monotony among them, no tiresome repetition of ideas in construction or trimming, but such a diversity of really good designing that there is a dress for every style, just as there is a becoming hat for every face. They have one very good point in common, however, and that is their simple lines, and designers appear to agree on the neckline, which is rounded in front and low enough sometimes to admit of a chemise, but higher than usual at the back.

Two very smart tailored frocks for fall may be studied in the picture here, and both present new features. The frock at the left has a severely straight bodice with long waist line, and sleeves slashed on the outer arm and curved upward to the three-quarter length. They are finished with a flat band of satin and the neck, in the same way. These bands appear across the top of the skirt at the back, where it is plaited and at the bottom of the front portion which is gathered. The skirt joins the bodice with a flat piping of satin and just above this piping satin bands reveal how cleverly they can be used when a designer sets out to do his best with them. Three rows of slashes in the bodice furnish them a chance to slip in and out and form a checker-board pattern that is charming for a cloth dress.

The simplest of straight-line dresses in the second model ought to inspire gratitude in the hearts of plump women, for it is destined to give them long lines. There is an inverted plait down the front and decorations of narrow ribbon in groups of six each, finished with tiny steel buttons. The new collar is interesting, being a tie of silk attached to the neck and finished with a bow, and ends at the front.

Sweaters Follow Devious Ways

SWEATERS—that worn must have a broad interpretation to cover all the varied garments that are called by it—are going by many paths this fall. But all lead in one direction and their goal is to furnish more warmth and less color, apparently, than their forerunners of the past season. There are so many variations of the principal models that every one can be suited. Slip-over and coat designs find about equal favor, both in short and fingertip lengths and in snug-fitting or loose adjustment. Some of the snug slip-over sweaters are only a little longer than a blouse. They are usually knitted with a band about the bottom and long enough to extend about six inches below the waistline where they turn jauntily upward in a narrow cuff.

Another short model appears in the surplice sweater and comes in the brighter colors. This is waist length also, open at the front with attached knitted belt extended so that it can be brought round the waist and tied at the back. Knitted or braided belts and sashes of the same wool as the sweater are the rule. Colors are quiet with the exception of some strong blues and greens and in many coat models no contrasting colors are introduced, but borders and bands are accomplished by varying the stitch in the knitting.

An attractive slip-over sweater is shown in the picture. Its neck and sleeves are unusual, the former having a square opening at the front and the latter deep-knitted flounces. The border at the bottom is of the same color as the sweater and so is the long knitted sash. This model fits snugly about the hips and is a trifle longer than its forerunners.

Starched Collars. Starched linen and pique collars are attractive below round, youthful faces, but they are hopelessly trying on thin-faced women and on women past the freshness of youth. With these child-like collars are worn knotted ties of soft silk in striped black and white, or dotted black and white effects; or of crepe de chine in somber shadings. The effect with one of the new manly tailored suits is very smart, indeed, but women of mature years do best to confine themselves to a more formal type of collar, of handkerchief lawn or batiste, touched with a little hand embroidery or finished with hemstitching. A collar of some sort, however, must turn over on the dark tailored coat, to give it the correct and up-to-date air. Small snap fasteners attached under the collar and to the collar of the coat will hold these detachable bits of neckwear in trim position.

Plaitings on the Wane. Plaitings are waning in favor.

COLONIAL TYPE ALWAYS POPULAR

Many Interesting Features Incorporated in This Design.

MAKES CHARMING PICTURE

Chief Attraction Lies in Its Quaintness, Roominess and Hospitable Appearance—Rooms Large and Well Arranged.

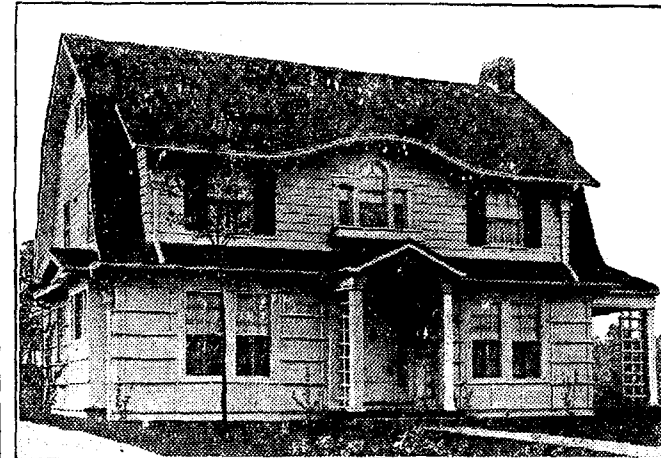

By W. A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 197 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

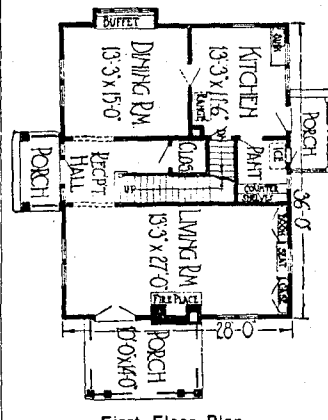

In spite of the fact that the Dutch colonial home is over a century old and was brought over by our ancestors, it is as popular as it has ever been, if not more so. Originally this type of home was found in the East, but in the last few years many colonial homes have been built in western communities. Its chief attraction lies in its quaintness, roominess and hospitable appearance. This gives it the charm that never fails to appeal.

The modern colonial home contains all the innovations of building art and stands as a link between the modern age and the days that have passed.

Who could wish for a more attractive home than the one shown here, built of frame with the attractive lattice on the lower story and drop siding above? It presents a very charming appeal to all home lovers. The side entrance which is so characteristic of this type looks like the old fashioned door with its distinctive knocker. The roof dormers have been made unusually attractive by the arch in the center, while green shutters contrasted with the white background add considerably to the general appearance.

WATER LILIES IN PROFUSION

Shaw Aquatic Gardens Near Washington Are One of the Sights of the National Capital.

One of the beautiful sights of Washington is the Shaw aquatic gardens at Kenilworth, now threatened with destruction by the Anacostia reclamation project. The gardens, commonly called "the water lily farm," lie across the Anacostia, above Anacostia Island, close to the district boundary line. A car runs from the treasury to the hamlet of Kenilworth, from which a quarter-mile walk brings one to the cluster of pools or small ponds constituting the farm.

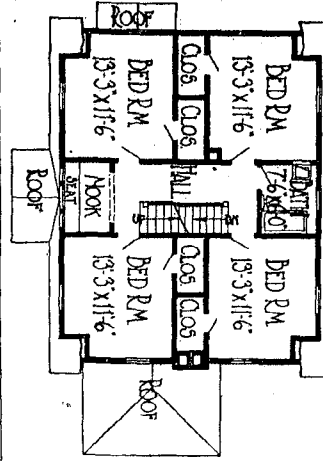

The gardens, says the Christian Science Monitor, are the result of the enterprise of W. B. Shaw and his daughter, Mrs. L. Helen Fowler. Their market extends from Portland, Me., to Macon, Ga., and west to Chicago, as far, indeed, as they bloom can travel and arrive fresh. The garden consists of 19 pools, covering six acres. They are irregular in shape, bordered by weeds and willows and separated by dikes six to eight feet wide. Except for their angular outlines they might be natural.

Nature, however, never produced in one spot so many kinds of water lilies—75 varieties—with such an amazing range of color. Purest frost-white, all imaginable pastel tints, blues, yellows, pinks, deep carmines, royal violets and purples, with various shadings and combinations, are found here during the season. In size they vary from the tiny Siberian water lily (pyramis), no larger than quarter, to the white virginia, ten inches in diameter. By some mysterious time-sense, each variety opens and closes at its own hours between dawn and dusk, except the night-blooming lilacs, which open after dusk and should be visited by moonlight.

Suppose There's No Hair? A New York inventor has combined an incandescent lamp with an ordinary electric hair dryer so that a person's hair can be given a light bath and dried at the same time.

The side entrance leads into a long reception hall from which exit is gained to the living room on one side and the dining room the other.

In this home the living room is by far the most striking feature. It is unusually large, being 13 ft. 3 in. by 27 feet. An ideal place for the family to gather in the evening. The large open fire-place of course is there, being one of the essentials in this kind of house. Two very large doorways open on the covered porch 10 by 14 feet, which can be easily converted into a sleeping porch with the addition of screens. At the very end of the living room is a wall bookcase.

The dining room on the other side of the hall is almost square being 13 ft. 3 in. by 15 feet. The kitchen is directly in back of the dining room and is slightly smaller in size. The size of the kitchen is an important feature of modern construction. The large kitchen of a few years ago is no longer found. This is particularly due to the shortage of domestic help, and the housewife cannot take care of the large room without help. As a result the builder has reduced the size of this room and hoped in doing so to make it more efficient. The kitchen in this home is built with all modern equipment. Opening from the pantry onto the porch is a wall door box. This eliminates the necessity of the ice man walking through the kitchen and disturbing the family, as he can put the ice in the box from the porch.

The bedrooms are all located on the second floor. There are four of them of exactly the same size, 13 ft. 3 inches by 11 ft. 9 inches, each with a large clothes closet and lighted by at least two windows. The bathroom completes the arrangement.

In view of the present shortage of homes and the crowded conditions in many localities, families who have such a home as is shown here are indeed fortunate. Too often in the construction of dwellings the children are overlooked, and in many cases are not tolerated by landlords. However, they are a necessity and attractive and comfortable homes like this type, will do much in developing them into healthy men and women.

A Brave Man.

Brown is a brave man, and when one night he heard a noise downstairs he promptly arose, took a poker, and proceeded to investigate the cause.

On reaching the hall, the light of the candle he carried revealed a burglar in the act of leaving the house.

"Hi!" cried Brown. "Come back!"

The burglar turned and gazed in surprise at Brown.

"What's the matter?" he inquired. "Have I forgotten anything? Ah, of course. The silver candlestick you are carrying. Thank you so much."

Then, before the astonished Brown could realize what had happened, the burglar seized the candlestick and vanished into the night.

Garden 6,930 Feet High.

One of the most extraordinary botanical gardens in the world is that laid out at an altitude of 6,930 feet, and the "Little St. Bernard," near the valley of Aosta.

This garden, established by the late rector of the hospice, M. Chanoux, comprises specimens of practically all mountain flora, whether it grows in the Alps, the Balkans, the Carpathians, the Caucasus, the Pyrenees, the Himalayas or among the mountains of America, Japan and New Zealand.

It was begun in 1892, but was not actually ready for inspection until 1897 when the rector of the hospice entrusted it to the care of Professor Vaccari.—Rochester Post-Express.

One View of It.

Wilson and Wilton were discussing the moralities when the first put this question:

"Well, what is conscience, anyhow?"

"Conscience," said Wilton, who prides himself upon being a bit of a pessimist, "is the thing we always believe should bother the other fellow."

CANADA'S HARVEST IS OVER

Threshing Shows Increase Over Expected Yields.

The Winnipeg Free Press of a few days ago contained a cartoon of which the following is a copy:

When Henry Thresh Threshed On Somebody's Estate He Found:

This probably as much as anything else will give some idea of the state of mind of the Western Canadian farmer, as he watches the tally from the threshing machine while his wheat is being carried to the elevator.

From all sections of the country, the most optimistic reports are received, the local and city papers are filled with reports from twenty to thirty bushels of wheat to the acre, while in some places oats are showing a record of as high as 120 bushels to the acre.

Referring to Saskatchewan, it is confidently expected that the wheat yield will be nearly 125 million bushels. Heavy rains which fell in districts that did not promise so well in July, had greatly improved the prospects there, and there is no question that paying yields will be produced. The yields in the eastern part of the province may not show to the advantage that will those of the western part, but too much cannot be said of this, for it is the results as they come from the machine, and often these prove happily deceptive.

There is now every reason to believe that the wheat crop of the three prairie provinces will approach 250 million bushels.

Alberta will exceed the 70 million bushels that had been looked for. The average yield will be considerably higher than it has been in the province in any of the last four years.

The Department of Agriculture in a recent report gave the opinion that it cannot fall below twenty-two bushels to the acre, and that it might easily pass the twenty-five bushel mark.

Most of the wheat in the province when the report was written, stood well up to three feet high, and on some fields was still higher. The report goes on that in parts of Southern Alberta forty and fifty bushels to the acre yields will not be uncommon, while there will be a good many yields of from thirty to thirty-five bushels to the acre.

In the northwest part of the province, in the country surrounding Battleford and adjacent to the Canadian National Railway line to Lloydminster, and south the crops are excellent and the yield will be heavy.

A larger than average wheat crop is being thrashed in Manitoba. It has been estimated that the total yield of the three provinces will not be less than 225,000,000 bushels, and it may be that somewhere between 250,000,000 and 300,000,000 bushels will be the final figure.

Oats is a good crop in all three provinces. This crop has also grown rapidly during the last two or three weeks. Excepting from those fields which were sown late for green feed, the yield will be heavy and the grain excellent. Barley and rye are above the average. There was sufficient help to harvest the crop.—Advertisement.

Other Contagion.

Other contagion seems to be about normal with the exception of diphtheria, which is well in the lead for this time of the year. We would especially advise that any sore throat be reported to the family physician or this department so a culture can be taken and the case diagnosed.

Almond Bismarck.
Make a paste of four tablespoonsful of cornstarch, wet with a little cold milk. Stir it into a quart of milk with four tablespoonsful of sugar, and boil until thick. Flavor with a few drops of almond extract and stir in half a cupful of blanched shredded almonds.
Mold, chill and serve with cream.

Bread Pudding.
Take one quart of milk and one pint of bread crumbs, two well-beaten eggs, a pinch of salt and one tablespoonful of butter. Bake about twenty minutes. Nuts or raisins or both are an addition to this pudding. After it is baked, jam or jelly may be spread over the top and a meringue to cover. Bake until a delicate brown.

Baked Pears.
Use the hard, large pears used for cooking. Core but do not peel. Fill the cores with brown sugar and bake in a pan containing little water. Baste occasionally and cook until tender.
Serve hot or cold with cream or a thin boiled custard.

Bordeaux Pudding.
Cut a sponge cake into three layers, spread with jam, put together again, cover with whipped cream sweetened and flavored and sprinkle with chopped nuts. Serve on a platter.
Another dessert similar to this which is most attractive is prepared as follows: Bake a light sponge cake in a round tin, split and put together with a thick filling of sweetened whipped cream flavored to taste.
Serve cut in wedge-shaped pieces with a spoonful or two of any fresh berries as a garnish.

Chocolate Pudding.
Take one cupful of stale breadcrumbs and enough milk to make a smooth paste when boiled with the crumbs. Add two tablespoonsful of butter, two tablespoonsful of cocoa, sugar and vanilla to taste. Take from the fire and add three egg yolks well beaten, then the whites beaten stiff and folded in. Put into a buttered baking dish and bake carefully. Serve with whipped cream or plain cream with sugar.

Jam Pudding.
Melt three tablespoonsful of butter;
add two well-beaten eggs and stir in a cupful of any preferred jam. Butter a pudding mold and put in it a layer of crumbs, then a layer of the jam mixture; repeat until the dish is full, having the crumbs on top. Bake over steam and serve hot or cold.

Last Night's Dreams

—What They Mean

ACORNS.

THAT simple little fruit of the oak tree, the acorn, has divided the mystic world of those who profess, or have professed, to read the riddle of dreams into two violently antagonistic camps. According to one set of petrators of the veil the acorn slued by the tree of night through the visions of our slumbers is as much to be desired as rubies and fine gold; to the other set it is a thing to be abhorred.
Those who sit in the camp of the pessimists and the predictors of evil declare that to see an acorn in one's dreams means dire poverty ahead if you don't watch out. Another one wails that it means that you are about to commit an irreparable fault. "Not so," comes the cheerful and confident cry from the other camp; the acorn seen in dreams is one of the happiest auguries; the acorn is one of dreamland's most desirable products. Those who say otherwise are night birds of ill-omen, croaking in the leafless dreamtrees whereon acorns never grow.
To dream of acorns, say this school of optimistic mystics, is a sure sign of good things ahead; much happiness in store for you. It means, among other good things, that you will derive much gain from your present business, which will increase under your fostering care. If you dream that you are picking acorns from the tree it means that, after trials, you will have a sure success. If you are now a laborer, or a worker of any sort, and you dream that you are eating acorns it is a sure sign that, from your present condition of toil, you will rise to a condition of peace and ease and plenty. When doctors disagree who shall decide?
Give us the optimists, every time!

The Grip of Grit.

Grit is one of the greatest assets in the world. Grit is something that is in the blood. It has a way of putting fire into the eye and stiffness into the backbone. In the most needy hours it rises like a full clad knight to win both place and honor. You can't buy it. Attempts to bribe it cause resentment. Organized opposition merely helps it get into fighting trim. It's that part of the nature that knows no defeat and isn't afraid of anything.
When you read of the greatness of men you can put it down to grit.

FOX AND THE WITCH

BLACK FOX had often heard that there were witches and fairies living somewhere in the forest, but he had never seen one and did not bother even to wonder where they had their home until one day he thought of something which would need the help of a witch.

One night he began to hunt and found the cave where an old witch and her black cat lived. They were dancing about a big kettle of something boiling over a fire outside the cave and for a second Black Fox thought of running away.

But instead, he hid behind a rock and watched the strange pair. He saw the old witch dip into the boiling pot and take out a cupful of something and give it to the black cat to drink, which changed the cat into a fox just like himself.

"Ah, this is just the place I am looking for," said Black Fox, running up to the witch, who was so startled by seeing two foxes she almost tumbled into the pot.

"Madam, I want your help," said Black Fox. "I want to have the power to change myself into a turkey whenever I like and the power to change back again also."

"What will you give me if I do this?" asked the greedy old creature.

Black Fox had not thought of that.
He had always got everything for nothing so far and this was a new idea, but he saw at once that this time he would have to pay, so he asked her what she wanted.

"As you have no gold to give," said the witch, "I will be easy with you and ask only for a stone, but it must be taken from the bottom of the pool that is in the middle of the forest and from no other place."

"Black Fox almost laughed at this.
It sounded so easy. He promised at once to begin the next night, bringing a stone from the forest pool."

Off he ran to the pool, and then he thought for the first time that this was no easy task for him to dive each night to the bottom and bring up a stone.

"How is she to know, I wonder, where the stone comes from?" thought sly Black Fox. "I am not going to risk my life every night getting a stone from that deep pool when there are plenty of stones right here on the ground."

The next night, as he was on his way to the witch's cave Black Fox picked up a stone from the ground and gave it to the witch.

"Here is the stone from the bottom of the pool, wise Witch," said Black Fox, and now I beg of you to be quick and give me the power I crave."

The old witch looked at the stone, and she knew at once Black Fox had tried to deceive her, but said not a word. Instead she went to the boiling kettle and gave him some of the fluid in a cup. "Drink!" she said, and had Black Fox noticed the look in her eyes he would have dropped the cup and run.

But he didn't. So he drank it and asked: "What shall I do next, wise Witch?"

"Wiser than you think," muttered the witch under her breath, but she told Black Fox all that he had to do was to wish three times when he wanted to change into a turkey, and it would be granted.

"But remember, this will only last for tonight. Tomorrow you must bring me another stone from the bottom of the forest pool and from no other place."

Black Fox promised, and off he trotted, laughing to himself that the old witch did not know the difference, and it would be easy to bring the stone each night.

Every-thing possible for the comfort of the patient is being provided at Knecht lake. Lumber has been provided and a good house has been built at that place for the patient and his attendant and everything possible is being done to make the man comfortable. Altho deprived of the society of human beings the patient is happy and contented. He enjoys the fishing on the lake and roams at leisure within the abounded territory surrounding the lake. Dr. James Humphrey of Lansing who came here with the patient says that there is no possible danger from the presence of the afflicted man and that only by constant contact with him can anyone become afflicted. Personally, "the Doctor" says, he is not satisfied that the case is really leprosy. He rode from Lansing in his car with Mr. Truax and feels that there isn't the slightest danger. Posters have been placed about the place warning people to keep out so that there is no danger of anyone running into it unknowingly. Health Officers Peter E. Johnson, who he learned of the affair, went to Lansing and consulted the State health department in regard to it and upon returning says that he is perfectly satisfied that in no way can the public become harmed by the presence of the man.

HUNDREDS LOSE LIVES IN 'QUAKE

30,000 ITALIANS MADE HOMELESS BY TWO SHOCKS; THOUSANDS INJURED.

CRATER APPEARS ON MOUNTAIN

Pizzo d'Uccello, A Mountain 5,845 Feet High, Opened By Shock Of First Earthquake.

London.—More than 1,400 persons were killed by earthquake shocks in Northern Italy and thousands were injured, says a Rome dispatch to the Morning Post.

The correspondent estimated the recovered dead at 327. However, many bodies were still buried under the ruins and the complete death toll could not be accurately judged.

More than 500 injured were under treatment in hospitals at Spezia and 300 were being treated at Lucca.

The Epoca, of Rome, says the dead exceeded 500 and 20,000 are homeless.

Rome.—A volcanic crater has suddenly opened at the top of Pizzo d'Uccello, a mountain 5,845 feet high, about nine miles northeast of Spezia.

It is located on what appears to be the northwest corner of the district shaken by the last earthquake, which resulted in the loss of hundreds of lives in the region just north of Florence.

A telegram from Spezia states the crater is emitting smoke and sulphuric fumes, and that scientists there attribute the volcanic outbreak to the earthquake.

Berlin.—The seismographic station at Jena suggests as the possible cause of the Italian earthquake a sinking of the earth along the mountains bordering the Gulf of Genoa. Experts there say it indicates a massive caving zone in the earth's crust.

SHOWS NEED FOR LAKE ROUTE

Advance in Railroad Rates Additional Reason For Waterway.

Toronto, Ont.—The announcement of the increase in railway freight rates provides an additional reason for the speedy development of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence route to the seaboard, according to Major Alex C. Lewis, of the Canadian Deep Waterways and Power association.

The present increase is the third in five years, amounting to about 100 per cent on the rates prevailing in 1915. In the meantime water rates are decreasing. At present freight can be carried to Great Britain at one-third of the rates prevailing two years ago.

The 40 per cent increase in the cost of transporting goods between eastern and western portions of Canada will have a tremendous effect on economic and commercial conditions in this country and will tend to divert trade to the north and south, between the two sections of the country and those portions of the United States lying closest to them.

Jefferson City, Mo.—Mrs. Margaret Burlington, convicted in a federal court in Wisconsin of having used the mails to defraud and sentenced to three years' imprisonment, was refused admission to the Missouri State Penitentiary because she has a six-months old baby with her. Under the terms of the federal commitment, Mrs. Burlington was to take the baby to prison with her and keep it for six months, after which the baby was to be in the custody of its father six months. STATE'S CROPS BEST IN YEARS

Less Acreage But Increase in Value At Least $35,000,000.

Lansing.—"Notwithstanding the decrease of about 5 per cent in crop acreage in the state this year, present conditions and prices indicate a production that will exceed last year's in value by $35,000,000 to $40,000,000, or approximately 9 per cent," says the state crop report.

While it is too early to predict a bumper yield, for any crop, and no crop shows better than 95 per cent condition, seldom has the general level of crops been so high. Only two crops in the leading ones of the state show a condition below the 10-year average and a number are from 6 to 10 per cent better. Most of the fruits are from 15 to 25 per cent better. The two that are below normal are wheat and hay. Sixteen of the 25 crops show improvement over last month.

The condition of beans is reported to be 90 per cent of normal and a crop of 3,194,000 bushels is predicted. Potatoes are also reported in excellent condition with an outlook for 92 per cent of a normal crop. Hay is also credited with good condition and a larger yield than last year. Commercial fruits are said to be in a flattering condition particularly apples.

Judge Says Women May Chew.

Kansas City, Mo.—A woman asked W. H. Scott, a policeman, how to reach an address. Scott told her. "Thanks," said the woman, and reaching into a pocket of her coat took out a plug of tobacco and bit off a chew. Scott arrested her on a charge of disturbing the peace. In municipal court Judge John M. Kennedy dismissed the case. "If women may vote, why shouldn't they chew?" inquired the judge.

Kemal is concentrating his troops at Bledjik, preparatory to a last stand. The capture of Afium Karahissar by the Greeks, it is believed will result in the destruction of the Kemal army. The captain sent the ship ahead at full speed and the baby came after the ship had entered U. S. waters.

The AMERICAN LEGION

LOS ANGELES POST GIRL MEMBERS WHO MADE HIGH SCORES

Sergeant Mildred Mobley, Marine corps, and Yeoman (f) First Class Pearl Bonham, both members of the Los Angeles post of the American Legion, made high scores in the "getting their name on the dotted-line" competition in the post's recent membership drive which brought in 1,200 new members. They had their station beside a sign board in front of the post club.

TO WAR AGAINST SWINDLERS IN THE "MISSING MEN" LIST

National Organization Takes Steps to Swing Full Force to Stamp Out Practice.

National and departmental officers of the American Legion have recently brought to light several instances in which unscrupulous swindlers have successfully capitalized the grief of the next of kin of Americans who lost their lives in the world war, and the organization's national headquarters has taken steps to swing the full force of the more than 9,000 Legion posts behind a movement to stamp out the practice.

The mother of a dead soldier whose grave had never been located recently was told by one of these parasites that he would visit Washington, if she paid his expenses, and find out at first-hand what could be done. Later, the impostor reported success and advised the bereaved family that the body would be sent home. A brother became suspicious and by a personal call at the war department learned that no inquiry ever had been made.

Another woman, whose son had not been heard from since he was reported wounded while fighting in the Argentine, received a letter signed with her son's name, asking her to send him money. She made a trip to Cleveland, O., only to find that the letter was a hoax. Later, she received a telegram signed with her son's name and notified the police in the town from which the pressure had been sent. The man who had attempted to defraud her was arrested.

At the instigation of the Legion, police of a California city are on the trail of a man said to have made a practice of corresponding with the next of kin of deceased soldiers with a view to defrauding them. He wrote a letter purporting to give first-hand information concerning the death of one of these missing soldiers, whereas investigation showed that the writer of the letter had never been outside the United States during the war.

Lemuel Bolles, Legion national adjutant, has urged all posts and departments to assist in warning relatives of missing heroes against paying any money for information or service of this nature, as both the Legion and the war department are willing to provide all available authentic information at all times without charge.

"40 MEN AND EIGHT HORSES"

Organization Within Organization Attracting Large Membership From Men Who Served in France.

Formed as an organization within an organization, Le Societe des 40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux of The American Legion is attracting a heavy membership from the ranks of those veterans who recall the days and nights of rolling by box car over the rails of France. Charters for local voltures are being issued by the chief de Chemin de Fer at Philadelphia, and a distinctive chapeau with a bronze badge has been adopted.

Much mystery enshrouds the doings of Le Societe, which possesses a ritual all its own and demands an initiation fee of $2. Only members of the Legion are eligible to belong to the society and termination of membership in the Legion brings with it elimination from 40 Hommes. Almost 1,000 members of the new society, it is expected, will be in Cleveland during the Legion convention September 27, 28, 29, at which time they will effect a permanent organization.

To Form Legion Post in Canada.

The formation of a new American Legion post in Toronto, Canada, is projected by D. J. Mahoney, a member of the Springfield (Mass.) unit. With eight or ten former service men now as a nucleus, Mahoney is trying to get in touch with all other service men in the vicinity of Toronto.

Rather Vague.

Expectant Heir—Doctor. Is there any hope for us?

Doctor—Which? Of your uncle's recovery or of his money?

Greeks Honor Defender.

Naming their organization after the immortal defender of Thermopylae, more than 350 Greeks of Gary, Ind., have organized Leonidas Post No. 228 of the American Legion. The charter was granted with the qualification that the post conduct its meetings in the American language and membership be not restricted to Greeks.

Post Purchases Burial Plot.

The purchase of a burial plot in a local cemetery marks the crowning achievement of Harold A. Andrews post of Portland, Me. It is planned to bury in this plot all deceased soldiers whose relatives are not known or who are not able to meet the expenses of their funerals.

"Dearest, dearest brother!" she whispered. "I'm so glad you think so, because you must help me keep him hid, else they'll come and take him back there, or maybe to jail."

Tillie cogitated, and replied: "There's that place in the attic where you and him used to play robbers' cave."

"What have I done?" he groaned. "What have I done?"

She sought to smile, but her eyes dilated with dread. "No, no, dear!" she soothed. "Be calm! You are all right. You are yourself—yourself."

"Yes—now—too late!" he cried. "How will you ever forgive me—when you know? For me to take advantage of you this way! I thought myself a man!"

"If only it was that!" he groaned. "Little girl, think—open your eyes! You cannot be so blind! Can't you see? Would a brother kiss you as I kissed you?"

More than ever frightened and bewildered, she stood silent. He bent nearer. At last the meaning of the look in his eyes forced its way into her consciousness. Her cheeks flamed scarlet and she suddenly whitened.

"You see?" he said. "You have not understood your own feelings, because you have been unable to think of me other than as a brother. But I, Amy—little sweetheart—"

"No, no! don't—don't say it!" she panted. "But it is with the utmost reverence—"

"Oh, Will! no-no-no!" she shrieked, and she fled from him in wild panic. He sprang after her and caught the door as she attempted to jerk it shut between them. His purpose, however, was only to close it without the violent jar that might have awakened old Tillie. Instead of following the frightened girl into the hall, he shot the bolt.

CHAPTER XIII.

Bemm Declares Himself.

At dawn Tillie, half waking, felt something warm against her bony shoulder. She gave it a shove and met with a soft resistance that caused her to screw her head about in affright. On the pillow beside her lay the tear-stained face of her beloved little mistress.

"Land sakes!" she exclaimed. "Whatever in the world—!"

The big brown eyes opened wide in a startled gaze. Still dazed from slumber, the girl clutched her companion's arm. "Tillie! don't leave me—don't leave me alone!"

"I won't, dearie; course not. There, there, it's all right—only a bad dream. Lie still and go to sleep again," crooned the old woman as she had soothed the girl when a young child. She muttered aside: "Such goings on! I never did!"

Amy rose on her elbow and stared at the window. "Why, it's daylight already. You'll be getting up."

"It's time. But just you lie still, dearie."

"I don't want to. I'll get up and help you. I'm—I'm lonely."

"Lonely?"

"And—frightened."

"Frightened? Land sakes! What makes you frightened?"

"Because he—It's a secret. Promise you'll never, never tell until I say you may."

"All right."

"Lean closer, so I can whisper it in your ear. He's home!"

"Huh?"

"Don't be a dummy! Will is home."

"He let him out, did they?"

"No. That's the secret. I went for him in the coupe after you were sound asleep."

"My! my! You went after him—all alone?"

Amy blushed and hurriedly explained: "He told me he would go raving crazy if they kept him shut up; so what else could I do? We had it all arranged. As soon as the moon went down, he climbed from his window and I brought him home."

"Poor Mr. Will! Of course, if he would have gone crazy, you done just right, dearie."

"I'm so glad you think so, because you must help me keep him hid, else they'll come and take him back there, or maybe to jail."

Tillie cogitated, and replied: "There's that place in the attic where you and him used to play robbers' cave."

about at Amy with a glance of resentment and suspicion and started up the garden on a run. The girl smothered a cry of dismay and darted after him. She was only a few steps in the rear when he overtook Tillie.

"Stop!" he ordered the hurrying woman. "What are you going to do?"

She halted and faced him squarely, her arms akimbo. Her tone was tart: "I ain't working for you. Mind your own business."

"I shall," retorted Bemm, and he showed her a silver-plated officer's star.

Tillie's mouth closed with obstinate firmness. Amy hastened to interpose. "There's the phone ringing! Maybe it's news of Will!"

She went past Bemm. He started to follow her, but paused to grasp Tillie's wrist. "Come along," he ordered.

"Why, Charlie?" remonstrated Ellen, who had hastened up the garden after Amy.

"I'll have no tricks," he rejoined. Ellen gave him a disdainful glance. But he had turned to overtake Amy, holding fast to Tillie. The girl went directly to the telephone, without making any attempt to elude him. She had the receiver at her ear when, still dragging the reluctant Tillie, he overtook her.

"S-sh!" she whispered. "It's that nice police officer at the hall. They've seen Will out near City park, and—"

"What?" cried Bemm incredulously. "Yes—here, take the phone. He's asking for you. He heard your voice."

"Stand where I can watch you—both of you," peremptorily commanded Bemm as he took the telephone. "Hello! hello! This is Mr. Bemm."

The receiver buzzed with a vehement reply that brought a flood of scarlet into the face of the listener. He slammed the receiver on the hook, snatched up his hat and ran out through the front hall, without stopping to take leave of the ladies.

"Mercy!" exclaimed Ellen. "Has everybody gone mad?"

"I guess he's hopping mad," observed Tillie. "My! Listen to the door slam! He's madder'n a wet hen."

Amy looked significantly at Tillie and remarked: "You haven't done the upstairs work."

CHAPTER XIV.

Appearances Often Deceive.

When Clinton awakened from his heavy sleep he perceived Amy's note on the floor. Going to the speaking tube he called for Tillie. There was no response. He started toward the rear window, but on the way noticed his pajamas, and went back to dress. Again he started toward the rear window, and again changed his purpose.

In the far corner, before the rose-covered summer-house, was a group of people. One of them was looking up at him. It was Amy, and she was gesturing to him. She did not wish him to be seen. The man was turning—

For several moments he stood at the window, his forehead gathered in a troubled frown. Behind him sounded a shuffling footstep. He started nervously and spun about. Old Tillie stood in the middle of the room, her finger on her lips.

"What! It's you?" he exclaimed. "How the devil—"

"Ssst!" she warned, "Miss Ellen's still downstairs. She'd run and tell him the first thing. You just missed her."

glimpse of some one moving on the far side of the room. He faced angrily toward the new intruder—and saw his own image in the big cheval glass on the opposite wall.

"Jove!" he muttered. "This won't do. Must pull myself together."

He went across to the mirror and stared fixedly at his frowning image. "Buck up, you idiot!" he advised himself. "Let yourself be hypnotized by that rot about double personality, did you?... That's it, grin! It's time that you were grinning at your ut—"

The word broke off in the midst. He glared into the mirror, the smile frozen on his lips. At the left side of the image of his face was the image of another face, smaller and less distinct—

His eyes dilated with terror. He stood gazing at the second image, petrified with horror, powerless to move. It was his own face.

There were differences—no mistake, the color almost white, the outline more thin; yet it was his face as it might be after an illness. It could not be a double reflection in the glass, for it lacked the mustache—also the expression was absolutely different. Unlike the immobile terror of his first image, the ghostly second face was twitching with active fear. The mouth gaped open.

"Insane!" he gasped. "I—am going—insane!"

He tottered to the rear window, opened the shade and gazed with shaking, trembling hands, and crouched against the sill in the midst of the streaming light and air.

Downstairs Amy and Ellen were weeping in each other's arms, reconciled companions in misery.

The doorbell rang sharply. The weepers flew apart.

"Some one's come!" sobbed Ellen. "My e-eyes!"

Amy, regardless of her tear-wet face, flew in through to the front hall. But already the door, unlocked by Bemm, was opening to admit Dr. Kirkland. Mrs. Kirkland came in after her husband as Amy rushed to meet them with well-feigned eagerness.

DREAM OF AMPUTATED LIMBS

Feelings of Those Who Have Lost Arm or Leg Can Only Be Cured by Time.

Dr. Edred M. Corner, the famous London surgeon, has been studying the dreams of persons who have lost an arm or leg by amputation, and he reports some interesting observations to "The Practitioner."

"The Practitioner." It is well known that after amputation the lost limb is still felt, at any rate for a time, and such sensations are called "phantom limbs."

Dr. Corner says these are unusual among the young but frequent among the older, and they pass away with time, after eight months or a year the patient being unconscious of the lost limb except when he thinks about it.

A man who has lost one limb may dream that he has lost both or that he has lost the wrong one, or that the one amputated is still there but seems awkward or hurts; the dreamer cannot bend the phantom leg or arm or find it stiff and heavy.

Badly fitting artificial limbs aggravate the sensations, evidently by irritating the severed nerves. Cold, damp, changes of weather and absence of occupation for the mind increase the sensations. The nearer the trunk the limb has been cut off the worse are the pains and the longer they are likely to continue.

Sometimes an operation or massage will cure a persistent case, but generally it has to be left to time.

Unconscious Humor.

The teacher of a third-year class during a test in written English requested each pupil to write an original sentence containing the word "character." After much thought one little girl evolved the following: "All the teachers on the third floor have a good character," which, doubtless, true, sounded rather hard on the teachers of the other floors.

In another school one of the teachers occasionally appears wearing one of the modern straight-effect gowns confined at the waist by a heavy silken cord with large tassels. One of the boys, writing upon the subject "Our School," referred to his teacher in flattering terms, but being unversed in the artistic as to raiment, finished his paper with the remark, "But sometimes she comes to school wearing her bathrobe."

Great Secret of Success.

The secret of success is in oneself, not in "pulls" outside influence, capital. This is one of the reasons that the poor young man and young woman who find themselves utterly dependent upon their own effort are largely the ones who win out in life, because their very lack drives them into themselves as their only chance.

The history makers are those who have been forced to make their own way in the world, compelled to "sink or swim," on their own initiative. They are the ones who have pushed civilization up.—Orison Swett Marden, in Chicago Daily News.

Ancients Used Wire Rope.

In Egypt thick benten wire was made into chains as far back as the second dynasty, 3200 B. C.; and links doubled and looped through one another appeared in the sixth dynasty, 2200 B. C. Yet chains were not commonly used until much later. The Gauls excelled in such work, as they used chain cables and rigging in place of rope to resist the Atlantic gales.

POLICE WILL NOT FREE KUEHLING

HUSBAND OF DROWNED DETROIT HEIRESS BEING HELD FOR INVESTIGATION.

DISFIGURED BODY RECOVERED

Missing Divorcee Had Fear of Poisoning, Former Husband's Reported Assertion.

Washington.—Roy Harper Kuehling will not be released by the police voluntarily until details regarding the supposed drowning of his wife, Gertrude Viger Osgood Kuehling, Detroit divorcee and heiress, are cleared up. Clifford L. Grant, chief of detectives, asserted. He said he was prepared to fight any attempt to effect the freedom of Kuehling, who is being held on a technical charge of investigation.

The body of Mrs. Kuehling, Detroit heiress, was recovered near the Mary land side of the Potomac river about 300 yards below the place on the Virginia side where her husband, Roy Harper Kuehling, told the police she was drowned when the canoe he was paddling capsized.

The body, badly disfigured, apparently from contact with rocks, was discovered by a riverman and taken to the morgue, where it was identified by Howard Osgood, Detroit real estate dealer and divorced husband of Mrs. Kuehling. Identification was made possible by a platinum wedding ring.

Osgood dived from the police tugs into the treacherous eddies of the upper Potomac river in an effort to recover the body. He and Detectives Walsh and Bauer risked their lives in the waters more than two hours. Five tugs were employed earlier by the police in the search for the body.

Since the reported fatality Kuehling has been held by the authorities. His attorney was in conference with Chief Grant following which the official made known his attitude regarding an attempt to obtain the man's release and intimated that if a writ of habe of again until Saturday night when he was discovered in Grayling eating in a restaurant. One of the state police, stationed in Grayling caught sight of the fugitive and fired several shots at the man, but failed to capture him.

"Nothing more was heard about Alford until today, while walking on Center avenue I ran right into him. Alford asked me the direction to a place and after getting the information he wanted he started to go away. I followed him and he went into the Rosenberg store at Washington and Fifth and I followed him in there and attempted to hold him until I could find an officer but the clerk in the store, evidently misunderstanding the situation ordered us out on the street to finished what he supposed was a fight. Immediately after Alford got out into the alley, going out the back door of the store he took to his heels and was chased by two citizens, down the alley as far as the vacant lot along side of the Shearer building and thence across to Adams street, over to Center, east on Center to the alley along side of the Elks Temple and thence down that alley to a hole in the basement of the Lorain rooming house where he took refuge, the two citizens watching until Deputy Sheriff LaRocque and the officers arrived.

Officers Look Twice.
The officers started their search of the basement of the building and after going through once they failed to find their man but decided to make another search. On the second attempt to find Alford, he was found crouched in a dark corner and was immediately taken into custody and taken to police headquarters.

Denies Everything.
On the arrival of the fugitive at the station he was turned over to Chief Davis and at first denied having any connection with the theft and robbery of the stores in Lewiston. Alford, when first questioned by Chief Davis, gave the name of William Daily and his residence as Detroit and when confronted by Mr. Beckman denied ever having been up north. After letting the prisoner linger in one of the cells at the station for a while, he was again brought out and this time he gave the name of Walter Alford, age 24 of Detroit, and admitted having been in Lewiston, visiting his relatives there but stoutly denied having anything to do with the robbery of the stores or taking of the truck at Lovells. Mrs. Alford, wife of the man arrested here and a youth named Dan Hitchcock are in custody of the officers at Lewiston on a charge of burglary and Alford claims that they are the ones who performed the robberies at Lewiston.

Mr. Beckman, in telling about the search of the four houses, which the Alford's own in Lewiston, said, "In all the houses there are large holes in the floors of the basements where goods have been stored and practically all the goods which they have there is of the most expensive kind, such as sweaters, traveling bags and wearing apparel and while I don't know where the goods came from I am sure that these people would not buy such stuff in the quantities which we found.

Chief Davis is inclined to believe that in capturing Alford, that gray highway has been made in running down some very clever thieves. The Alford family have resided in Lewiston for about six months and it is thought that some of the goods which they have are probably from some other town, or that they have been stolen from freight cars.

Alford is locked up at the police station charged with burglary and in the meantime an investigation will be made by the local police in an effort to locate the owners of some of the property that is housed in the Alford homes at Lewiston.

FRECKLES

WITHIN the last few weeks several dozen requests have come to me from different parts of the country, to explain the reason for freckles, and to give some advice upon their prevention and treatment. Many people think that it is the heat of the sun's rays that cause freckles. Scientists have found out, however, that it is not the heat but the light from its electric rays—called its actinic rays—which develops these small blotches. In hot countries, these are stronger than in cold climates.

Neither blue nor white veils are protection against these, as the electric rays pass directly through these colors. On the other hand, red rejects them, so red veils would be an absolute protection. But red would be too hard on the eyes to make such an accessory practical. Reddish brown is a good choice.

Massage will tend to prevent freckles, for massage will keep the skin clear of blemishes. A skin well powdered and rubbed with cream will come off unfreckled from exposure. Orange flower, or elder flower, or cucumber water will bleach freckles. Buttermilk will bleach them on some skins. A French doctor says that if the skin be rubbed nightly with the white of an egg beaten to a froth and mixed with an equal proportion of sweet almond oil, that the texture will stay white and wrinkles will be ward off for many years. This mixture will bleach freckles if after the morning bath this solution is also rubbed into the skin.

To a hundred grammes of rose water add five grammes of borax—this latter just kitchen borax, if you can get the proper measurement. Ten grammes of spirits of camphor are added next—every medicine chest likely contains this—and five grammes of tincture of benzoin. This last is added to close the pores of the skin.

These are all simple ingredients, usually found in every medicine cabinet, and they will keep the skin smooth and soft and free of blemishes.

PERSONAL HYGIENE.

Health—public as well as individual—is largely a matter of education and then of habit. The great essentials of health—fresh air, sunshine, plain nourishing food and cleanliness—are at the command of nearly every person, and especially of those who are fortunate enough to dwell in this country. Ignorance and carelessness are accountable for failure to use any or all of these requisites of good health.

The good things that we have always with us are apt to be underestimated and neglected.

Sunlight may cost a faded carpet coat. But what if they purchase health?

Of all types of hygiene, the most important at the present moment is individual hygiene. This is the hygiene of personal habits, and it is so important because upon it depends the death rate from the degenerative diseases. By this term is meant the wear and tear of diseases, such as cancer, arteriosclerosis, bright's disease, etc., which are largely due to bad personal habits. The death rate from these degenerative diseases in the United States registration area has increased 41 per cent in twenty years. This is due to the fact, that while we have been fighting the infectious diseases we have not been fighting the wear and tear diseases.

HOUSEWORK IS A BURDEN.

Woman's lot is a weary one at best. But with backache and other distressing kidney ills life indeed becomes a burden. Doan's Kidney pills have made life brighter for many Grayling women. Ask your neighbor! Read what Mrs. Geo. Wittenmyer, Park St., Grayling, says: "When I had kidney trouble my back hurt so badly that I could hardly get out of bed. My back felt lame, stiff and sore and played me out completely. At one time I couldn't do my housework. When I stooped over and tried to straighten, severe pains started through my back. I couldn't sleep at night and was very nervous. Black specks used to pass before my eyes and they made me dizzy. Often I had headaches and my kidneys were weak and irregular in action. I heard of Doan's Kidney pills and got a box. They cured me in an excellent manner."
